

08th October 2007

WARNING

MORE RAINFALL AND SNOWFALL EXPECTED

The country is currently experiencing widespread rains. Snowfall also occurred on Saturday and Sunday the 6th and 7th October over the northern, central and eastern highlands. More rainfall is expected countrywide tomorrow the 09th October 2007, with snowfall over the highlands, especially northern highlands. The temperatures are expected to drop significantly tomorrow but remaining generally cool for the rest of the week.

It is therefore advised that people who wish to travel to the mentioned places be careful or refrain from attempting to travel to the highlands, as the roads may be inaccessible due to snowfall. People are also advised to take care of themselves against cold weather conditions.

Please stay tuned for an update
